Divorce Financial Services

While appointing a family law attorney is generally considered a necessity during a marital dissolution, enlisting a divorce financial expert to settle the complex financial issues is often just as imperative. As a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) with accounting, tax and financial expertise, a Boulay divorce financial advisor uses financial models and analytical procedures to help strengthen a client's case. Having an integrated marital dissolution team that includes a divorce financial expert helps ensure that the process runs more efficiently and effectively for the involved parties.

How we help you get there

We help our clients and their attorneys strategically manage all financial aspects in a marital dissolution by gathering and analyzing data and assisting in settlement negotiations and trial testimony. Our goal is to assemble and prepare the necessary financial information that may affect spousal and/or child support, the division of assets and, in some cases, a closely held business, to allow our clients to understand their current and future financial outlook.

Our Divorce Financial Services include:

Property

- Property Division Analysis
- Non-Marital Tracing of Assets
- Business Valuation

Cash Flow

- Historical Cash Flow Analysis
- Spousal Maintenance Calculations
- Child Support Calculations
- Self-Employed Income Analysis
- Historical Spending Analysis

Whether the divorce case goes to court or not, enlisting the assistance of a Boulay divorce financial expert helps create a more complete and justifiable financial case. The tools, processes, and models our advisors have from being part of an accounting firm give them the necessary advantage to assist clients in all financial aspects of a marital dissolution. By saving time and money, as well as the leveraging their knowledge and in-depth expertise, our divorce financial experts provide a complete and accurate financial picture that better supports our clients.
